

Rain Barrel Rebate Program

What is a Rain Barrel?

Easy to install and usually inexpensive, rain barrels are an excellent way to conserve Cranbrook's drinking water supply. Rain barrels collect rainwater from buildings and rooftops to be used at later times. This water can be used for outdoor irrigation, reducing the need to use treated water from the tap.

Why Collect Rainwater?

- Rainwater is naturally soft and devoid of minerals, making it better for plants and soil.
- You will have your own water source in times of drought or water restrictions.
- Water conservation reduces your utility bill cost.
- Helps to supplement your outdoor water use, reducing strain on the reservoir when demand is highest, and supply is lowest.
- Reduces the volume of storm water run-off, preventing erosion and preserving creek health.

Rainwater is not treated; therefore, it is non-potable. Do not use this water to drink or cook with.

The Program:
